

OCEAN BEACH JETTY LOOKS MORE PROMISING THIS WEEK

CITY OFFERS TO ADVANCE
$112,000 TO ENGINEERS
OF ARMY TO START WORK

New indications appeared this week that the proposed south jetty at the entrance to Mission bay, known as the Ocean Beach Jetty, will be the first construction outside the bay, City Planning Director Glenn Rick informed the Ocean Beach News Wednesday.

Plans for the Ocean Beach jetty, which is the south one of three that are to be built outside the bay entrance, calls for a jetty 1600 feet long, he said. The experts that have studied beach development in connection with river outlets to the ocean are strongly of the opinion that such jetty will result in the sand and other material brought down by the San Diego river being deposited south of the south jetty and is expected to make material additions to the beach area off Ocean Beach.

City Offers to Advance Money.
In order to hasten the start of construction, the city has offered to advance $112,000 to the Army Engineers, Rick reported. This amount, he figured, would be enough to build the jetty out to a distance of 800 feet, or half of the entire length.

The other two jetties will be one on each side of the new entrance to Mission bay, and each will be from 2500 to 3000 feet in length. Depth of the bay entrance channel in order to allow the small ocean going craft to enter will be 20 feet, Rick stated. The middle jetty will be an extension of the north wall of the river flood control channel and will separate the channel from the Mission bay anchorage and harbor. The north jetty will protect the Mission Beach side of the bay entrance.

The completed project will result in separating the river entirely, from Mission valley to the ocean, from Mission bay. Part of the channel at the mouth may prove navigable for small boats. The channel giving access to Mission bay harbor itself will be navigable for small sea-going craft. The project is part of the city's $14,000,000 Mission bay aquatic park and recreation development plan.

Dredging Progresses
Dredging in the bay is progressing, reports Rick. Main activity now is the building of the proposed island south of the causeway and the building up of the Ocean Beach approach to the new bridge that will connect Ocean Beach and Mission Beach after the present bridge is removed.

TOM McCARTY, FORMER RECREATION DIRECTOR, MAKES GOOD WITH DONS

Tom McCarty, former director of recreation for the old Davis gym play center in Ocean Beach at the foot of Santa Monica Ave., evidently is making good with the San Diego Tecate Dons, with whom he has been playing this season. Tom has been playing forward practically every game for the Dons and has bucketed a goodly share of the points that the San Diego basketballers have made in each game. They are playing as members of the American Basketball league. McCarty left the team Monday in Salt Lake City and came home to San Diego to be ready to greet the birth of his first offspring.

Crary Asks for Ban on Fishing With Nets Here

Councilman G. C. Crary Tuesday asked the city council to recommend to the state legislature that an act be passed prohibiting net fishing off the coast of Ocean Beach. He suggested that the ban on this kind of fishing by commercial interests be placed on the waters along the coast from Mission Bay entrance as far south as the Point Loma lighthouse.

Purpose of his plan, he says, is to enable fish life to be restored to more natural numbers in the part of the coast waters outlined.

Search Continues for Young Suicide's Body

The body of Rachel Upton who is presumed to have leaped from the Mission Bay bridge Monday noon, had not been found as this paper went to press. Lifeguards are continuing the search for the body of the young resident of East San-Diego, who has been missing from her home since Monday.

Identity of the young lady who was seen in the center of the bridge Monday was established when her mother identified the Bible, purse and umbrella which were found on the bridge as belonging to Miss Upton.

Lee Largent, city employee who lives at 1069 Catalina Blvd., reported that he saw a girl standing on the bridge, crying and reading a Bible as he drove north across the bridge Monday noon. Suspecting her intentions, Mr. Largent turned around and drove back, but the girl was gone. Mr. Largent reported that he doubted if the girl would have had time to walk back to the south shore in the interval before he returned to the scene.

Asks Ocean Beach To Aid in Traffic Safety Drive, 1947

Ocean Beach community is asked to take part in an intensive county-wide traffic safety campaign during 1947. The Ocean Beach News was advised this week.

Hoping to continue the splendid record of reduction in traffic fatalities in San Diego last year, there has been temporarily organized the San Diego County Safety council, with a contest among the various cities of this county as the feature of the 1947 campaign.

Ernest E. Eiler of La Jolla, executive director of the drive, says that the "purpose of the campaign is to arouse and maintain public interest in traffic safety, to the end that traffic deaths and injuries be eliminated in this county. He suggests the formation, in each community, of a safety committee to assure the continuance of the campaign.

Carlyle Reed of La Mesa has been named temporary chairman in order to facilitate the organization of the county council. He announces a main feature of the program is the contest between the various cities, which already has been started. To start the contest the mayor of La Mesa issued a challenge to the mayors and city councils of all the cities in the county to see which city can have the best record by the end of 1947 in traffic death and injury reduction.

A table of percentages and standings of the various cities is being kept, in which each traffic death is given a numerical equivalent of 25 injuries. Standings up to midnight, Jan. 28, showed Coronado in first place, Oceanside second, National City third, La Mesa fourth, El Cajon fifth, San Diego sixth, Escondido seventh and Chula Vista eighth.

Ocean Beach, of course, is one of the communities of the city of San Diego and the object of local participation in the campaign will be to help San Diego city as a whole to compete successfully with the other seven cities.

Chairman Reed asks Ocean Beach to name a delegate to a county-wide meeting and the safety council. The delegates will meet soon as possible and organize the campaign on a permanent basis, he indicates.

Pointers Throw Scare Into San Diego High Team

Coach Don Clarkson's Point Loma High basketballers threw a large size scare into the cocky San Diego high school five that has been defeating practically every southern California team played this season. The Pointers, playing the game on the San Diego floor Tuesday evening, held the Hillers even at 9-all at the end of the first half and lost the game by a margin of only two points, 27 to 25.

Don Larsen, star Pointer center, with 14 points, was high individual scorer of the game. Pastore garnered five points, Kane-yuki three, Medina two and Silva one.

In the Class B game the Pointers did not fare so well, losing by a score of 41 to 14.

BUILDING FIRM INVESTS ABOUT $600,000 IN HOMES IN LOCAL AREA

Largest new housing project in the Ocean Beach area in many years got under way this month when the Dennstedt Co. of El Cajon Blvd., San Diego, began construction of new dwellings, mostly in the Catalina Blvd. section.

Arthur L. Dennstedt, member of the firm which consists of his father and two brothers and M. D. Sparks, informed the Ocean Beach News Wednesday night that his company has made plans for the construction of 61 houses in this area. While estimates, naturally, are somewhat hazardous under present conditions, he stated that the total investment including lots and improvements that his firm is making will be right around $600,000.

City building permits already have been obtained for 23 of the 61 residences, Mr. Dennstedt reported. They will be two and three-bedroom houses. A large share of them are located on Catalina Blvd. Others are on Narragansett and Niagara Aves. Permits announced Wednesday for this firm include 1816, 1824, 1846, 1840 and 1834 on Catalina; 4229, 4230, 4238, 4224 and 4260 on Narragansett Ave. and 4225 and 4237 on Niagara Ave.

"We are building all of them for sale and 10 of the number already have been sold," Dennstedt stated Wednesday.

Three crews, totaling 30 carpenters, are now at work on the various houses on which construction has been started.

The five men in the firm are E. W. Dennstedt, president of the company; his three sons, Arthur L. Dennstedt, M. F. Dennstedt and K. L. Dennstedt and M. F. Sparks.

Other Housing Permits Issued

Other building permits issued by the city during the past few weeks for new residences in the Ocean Beach area include the following:

PEOPLE ARE ASKING THESE QUESTIONS ABOUT ARMY ENLISTMENT

Q. What educational benefits do I get under the GI Bill of Rights?

A. If you serve honorably on active duty for a period of 90 days, one day of which is served between September 16, 1940, and the date of termination of the present war, or you are discharged because of an actual service-incurred injury or disability incurred within that first 90-day period of service, you are, upon discharge, entitled to one year of education in the college, trade or business school of your choice for which you can qualify. In addition, each month of active duty, including the first three, prior to the termination of the war, entitles you to another month of post-service education, up to 48 months.

Your tuition, laboratory fees, etc., up to $500 per ordinary school year will be paid by the government. Also, you will receive $65 a month living allowance; $90 a month if you have dependents.

Q. What about family allowances?

A. For men enlisting or reenlisting now, family allowances will continue until six months after the war is officially ended.

Q. What are my chances of going overseas?

A. If you enlist for 3 years, you may select to serve in any overseas theater which has openings, especially Japan or Korea.

Q. Can I still choose the branch of service I want to serve in?

A. Yes. You can pick any branch which has quotas to be filled, if you enlist for 3 years.

Q. Is there any way I can reenlist in my old grade?

A. Yes, you can, if you reenlist for a 3-year term within 20 days after your honorable discharge.

Q. Is there any other way I can reenlist in grade?

A. Yes, if you held one of certain military occupational specialties, and were discharged on or after May 12, 1945, you can reenlist in a grade depending on the length of time you held the desired M. O. S.

Visit your nearest U. S. Army Recruiting Station for answers to any other questions you may have, or for further details on the above questions.

STATE COLLEGE NEWS

(By Caire Hollobaugh)

Finals are over, the semester ended and the "Blue Book Belle" has reigned once again over a festive evening, so with all our worries behind us, we turn eagerly toward the six-day vacation ahead of us.

The "Blue Book ball was bright with beautiful gowns and we were lucky enough to catch Rosamund Decker of 4928 Coronado wearing a drop shouldered pink French brocade gown with a full skirt. Rosamund wore gold accessories with her gown. Nora Ingram of 4658 Adair was quaint in a strapless white and olive green striped poplin with a peplum climaxed by a huge brown bow. Brown elbow length gloves were worn with the gown. A black velvet bodice with a round neck and cap sleeves was worn over a black and white taffeta bustle skirt by Beverly Lake of 4338 Coronado Ave. Carmen Price of 1775 Ebers wore a striking green plaid taffeta with a bustle effect in back and with silver accessories. An outstanding gown was that worn by Dorothy Shepherd of 4620 Del Monte. It was a strapless green net princess style worn over green taffeta. She wore yellow roses in her hair. Nancy Williams of 1725 Sunset Cliffs Blvd. wore a powder blue net gown over blue taffeta with a sweetheart neckline and flounced skirt. The bodice was sprinkled with opalescent sequins. One of the most unique gowns was worn by Mildred Van Gessel of 4963 Long Branch Ave.

A strapless pink and blue striped satin bodice with a matching peplum pulled to a large bow in back. The skirt was black net over black taffeta and was sprinkled with pink and blue sequins. Mildred wore black elbow length gloves and a rhinestone necklace with the gown.

The Hods threw a pre-party before the "Blue Book" ball which drew Nora Ingram, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Peebles, Clinton Potter, Carlton Bingham and Ed Bennet from Ocean Beach.

Walt Marshall, George Claspill, Jeff Hall and Daniel Robinson, all Tau Delta Chis, were present at the "open house" given by one of the fraternity members prior to the ball.

Many Aztecs are leaving State this semester but none are going as far as Dick Odom of 737 Sunset Cliffs. Dick is leaving today for Anchorage, Alaska. He will fly to Seattle from San Diego and after a short stopover will fly on to Anchorage to take up a position waiting for him.

Mary Jane Brazell of 1054 Devonshire Dr. is leaving soon for Newcastle, Wyo., where she will visit relatives.

A recent guest at the Idyllwild resort in the San Jacinto mountains was Frank Alverson of 1656 Guizot St.

Vi Daly of 4222 Whittier was present at a buffet dinner given by one of her sorority sisters last Wednesday evening.

Among Ocean Beach Aztecs present when Grossmont's basketball team won over Point Loma 37-29, were Carlton Bingham, Bill Sharp, Bill Stone, Jack Hamlin, Mat Hegerle, Ed Klosterman and William Welsh.

Mexico Described By Inter-American Affairs Official

Because of increased interest in Mexico, the improved Mexican roads and hopes of many Ocean Beach News readers to visit our southern neighbors in the not distant future the following article, based on data published by the coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, is herewith printed as follows:

Mexico is a fabulous country. She has a culture that was centuries old before the Mayflower made history for us. She is as new as tomorrow's front page. She is sophisticated; she is primitive; she is religious; she is pagan in her feeling for the soil; she is modern; she is young in her enthusiasms and she is very old! She is our neighbor who lives next door.

Mexico's geography and products are more varied than those of any area of similar size in the world. These products range from hemp to gold, from copper to coffee, from petroleum to oil from the castor bean. Her climate ranges from the tropical jungles on the west coast and the Gulf to the high, invigorating air of her great plateau, in the center of which, at 7400 feet, lies Mexico City. The people of the republic are as different as the geography or the climate. From one state to another, they vary in customs and in dialect.

Mexico Dates from 1519
The history of modern Mexico begins with the landing in Vera Cruz of Hernando Cortes, in 1519, with a force that consisted of "400 foot, 20 horses," and a few pieces of crude artillery. This handful of men conquered half a continent—and overturned the Aztec Empire.

Hidalgo and Juarez
For three centuries viceroys ruled Mexico for the Spanish crown. Spanish law recognized the ancient right of each person to till his part of the village ejido, communal land. These small lands were barely enough to supply each family's food. Yet these plots meant much to the people, who for generations had considered them their own, and for whom the love of the soil was a deep passion. Out of the struggle to retain them, came two of Mexico's greatest leaders, Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla and Benito Juarez. Hidalgo, a parish priest, was 57 when he led the country in its fight for freedom from Spain. This revolt began September 16, 1810. Mexico, like our own country, has a liberty bell. It was rung for the first time by Hidalgo from his church on the night of Sept. 15, to call his patriots around him. Now every year at midnight on Sept. 15, the president of Mexico rings the Liberty Bell which hangs above the National Palace in Mexico City.

The second of Mexico's great Patriots was Juarez. To the people themselves, he was farseeing and kind. Many of the provisions of the 1857 Constitution, inspired by him, have been retained ever since.

A Mineral Storehouse
The "great plateau" is the most highly mineralized section of the world. For years a large producer of silver, antimony, lead, mercury, zinc and graphite, Mexico is still increasing her output. With modern methods of mining and milling, Mexico produces well over half the world's silver. The amazing fact is that her mineral wealth is apparently unlimited. The Aztecs knew and used gold, silver, copper alloys and tin. The Spanish conquerors sent to Spain more than six hundred million pesos of silver from one mining region alone.

Long Cultural History

The country itself, with its unusual beauty, has given Mexicans a love of beauty, of contrast and of color. Since the days of the Maya they have been fine craftsmen. They love life which gives their work its vigor. Much of the craftsmanship dates from the Aztecs. A few years ago the fine weaving, the hand-blown glass, and other arts were near being lost. Fortunately, there has been a revival of these treasured crafts. Books were printed in Mexico City as early as 1536, using the first printing presses in America. Music also was printed and copies of wood engravings made. Painting in Mexico is at least 5000 years old, as ancient Mayan murals, their colors still preserved, will testify.

Geographical Highlights

Mexico ranges from the barren lands below the Arizona border to the jungles of Yucatan. Cotton is grown in the State of Coahuila. Wild game abounds throughout much of the country. On the peninsula of Yucatan, you will find a place unlike any on the earth. Jungles and white limestone, old Mayan ruins, rivers that run underground. Few rivers in the country are navigable for any distance. Most are narrow and swift. Most important is the Rio Panuco, down which tankers carry oil to Tampico and the Atlantic.

One of the most enchanted spots in Mexico is Lake Chapala, near Guadalajara. Covering 470 square miles, the lake is referred to as the Sea of Chapala and is 5000 feet above sea level, yet far enough south that there is neither summer or winter. It has always been a resort for people—and birds. Snow geese from Canada, crows from New England, spend their winters here.

Three of the highest volcanos in the world rise above the great plateau. Popocatepetl is best known, and is not far from Mexico City.

The west coast of Mexico, including the Gulf of California, is 4200 miles long, with the excellent port of Acapulco, popular for bathing and deep sea fishing. Guaymas, nestled in the upper end of the Gulf of California, is considered one of the safest ports in the Americas.

A Republic

There are 28 states in Mexico, three territories (of which Baja California is one) and the Federal District. Mexico City, located in the Federal District, is the capital and largest city in the republic. At present great strides are being made in public health, public schools and similar programs, all designed to further improve the lot of the average citizen. Public works, including roads, dams and irrigation are under way.

"Mexico, mi Tierra"

Truly Mexico is a fabulous country. One that you will want to visit, to know better. And when you hear our Mexican friends say, "Mexico, mi Tierra" (Mexico, my land!) you will know that they mean it from the bottom of their hearts. To them it is a land worth the centuries of fighting to hold it!

No Need to Increase Your State Gasoline Tax!

STATE HAS ENOUGH MONEY TO BUILD NEW ROADS WITHOUT INCREASED TAXES!

The Oil Industry believes:

California highways must lead the rest of the nation.

New highways must be built.

Our highways must be kept repaired.

But facts show that it isn't necessary to increase your gasoline tax to accomplish these objectives.

READ CAREFULLY:

1. Highway funds now available total $140,000,000
2. During the next four years total highway revenue from all sources will add to the fund $528,000,000
This totals $668,000,000
3. Expenditures during this period (repairs, new roads and including the projected State super highways) will cost an estimated $633,000,000
4. This will leave a surplus of . . . $ 35,000,000

In other words, all major improvements in California highways during the next four years will still leave a multimillion-dollar surplus in the highway fund without raising taxes.

The Big Question is: Why does the State want additional hundreds of millions of dollars of YOUR MONEY during the next four years?

How will this money be used?

Before our gasoline sales tax is doubled (or even increased), every citizen in California has a right to know in detail where his money is going.

Right now a special session of the California legislature is considering this tax increase. There is no time to lose.

Express your views on this important matter. Write today to your Assemblyman and State Senator. Address him: State Capitol, Sacramento, California.

A 3c stamp can save you 3c a gallon for years to come!

Western Oil and Gas Association

"There is no apparent reason why the State gasoline tax should be doubled, or even increased. The Western Oil and Gas Association challenges the advocates of higher taxes to refute with detail the facts here presented."

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I: Spratt Herlong was a major producer of motion pictures. He called Elizabeth, his wife, to join him at lunch. Elizabeth knew that something was not going right at the studio and that her husband desired her presence.

CHAPTER II: At the start of World War I, Elizabeth had married. Her husband soon sailed for France and later was reported killed in action. Spratt was her second husband. This memory always returned when she thought of Dick going to war.

CHAPTER III: Spratt phones Elizabeth that he is bringing Kessler, one of his new writers, for dinner the following night. Kessler, a German refugee who had been in the first war, was, unknown to the Herlongs, Elizabeth's first husband.

CHAPTER IV: Elizabeth had been orphaned as a baby and raised by her aunt and uncle in Tulsa. She had been sent away to college, but during one summer vacation she went out to the country club to swim. There she had met Arthur Kittredge.

CHAPTER V: Elizabeth and Arthur had many dates the following days, swimming, dancing and hiking. They found that they were meant for each other, and despite all objections were married. Then the United States entered the war, and Arthur enlisted. After less than a year of married life, Arthur was off to the war. Then came the wire that Arthur was killed in action.

CHAPTER IX: Spratt was delayed for dinner. Cherry and Dick had invited Julia and Pudge, and were waiting for them. Elizabeth informed them that Kessler and his daughter would be there for dinner the following night and that Dick would have to entertain Kessler's daughter after dinner.

CHAPTER XI: At first Arthur, or Kessler, had no desire to live. His had been Dr. Jacoby's son, however, turned to respect, and as his body was mended, his spirits began to return.

CHAPTER XII: Dr. Jacoby reached an agreement with Arthur, that in return for his cooperating in trying to live, Dr. Jacoby would see that Arthur Kittredge was reported officially dead.

CHAPTER XIII

He was not yet able to push his thoughts forward into what he might be going to do with the future Jacoby was forcing upon him. This occupation was enough for the present. He filled up his mind with German words to keep it from being filled up with thoughts of Elizabeth. When Jacoby came to see him he talked in simple sentences, proudly, and felt a childish delight when Jacoby and the nurses began to understand him.

Long afterwards, when they were looking back on those days, Jacoby said to him, "You did not know how you were encouraging me then." Arthur answered, "Maybe you never knew how often I nearly gave up." "Yes I did know," said Jacoby, "but you did not give up. That is what I mean, Kitt."

To the very end, Jacoby sometimes called him Kitt. If anyone asked why, he said, "Oh no, Herr Kessler's first name is Erich. Calling him Kitt is an old habit of mine, from years back."

They were both so used to it they generally forgot it was an abbreviation of his old name. The new name was provided by Jacoby after Arthur had been moved to the hospital in Berlin, while he was convalescing from another of the surgical operations Jacoby inflicted upon him. He had been very ill and Jacoby had given him a blood transfusion. When he was better and tried to express his thanks Jacoby retorted, "My blood isn't good enough for gratitude, Kitt—made of nothing but turnips and a carrot or two. But I have something else for you, more important." He produced a document, offering it with an air of triumph. "Here is your birth certificate."

Arthur laughed at that. Birth certificates had not been important in the United States before the war. He had never had one. But Jacoby was a German and thought like a German, and to him his beloved Kitt's physical welfare was no more essential than the records which the Germans demanded even in their most chaotic days. Jacoby explained,

"Listen carefully, Kitt. From now on your name is Erich Kessler. I have lost sleep over wondering how you could identify yourself, until one morning about three o'clock I found the solution. When I was a child, my parents knew a couple named Kessler. They had a son named Erich. While the boy was still a baby, the Kesslers went to the United States. They lived in a town called—' he consulted his notes, and pronounced incorrectly — 'Milwaukee. You have heard of it?'"

Arthur nodded. "Yes. I grew up in a town called Chicago. They are very near each other."

"You have been to Milwaukee?"

"Frequently."

"That is good. While he was still a small child, Erich Kessler died. I know that, because his mother and mine used to correspond. But there is no official record of that in this country, because the Kesslers stayed in the United States and were naturalized. For all I know they may be there to this day."

"Making beer, perhaps?"

"Why? Do you know them?"

"Never heard of them. But I know Milwaukee. Go on, Jacoby."

"I have obtained Erich Kessler's birth certificate. I have recorded that Erich—you—naturalized without his knowledge or consent when his parents were naturalized, was drafted into the American army. The rest follows. You have returned to the land of your birth, and can stay here now until you want to leave."

"I shall not want to leave, Jacoby."

"I hope not. But anyway, this makes you a German and at the same time takes care of your American accent. However, please listen to me and try to speak like me. Erich Kessler would have heard his parents speak German at home and would pronounce it better than you do."

"I'll do my best. Correct me whenever you please."

Almost automatically, Jacoby was massaging the muscles of his patient's right arm. "These are flabby," he observed. "While you are lying in bed, for a few minutes at a time, clench your fist slowly and relax it slowly. Slowly, remember? That won't tax your strength, and you must take care of this arm. You will need it."

"For a crutch?" said the new-made Erich Kessler, with a note of his old bitterness.

"I hope there will be a crutch," Jacoby answered quietly. "Remember, I've promised nothing about your legs except to do the best I can with them."

"All right, all right, I know. A man isn't hoping for too much in this world when he hopes for a crutch, is he?"

Jacoby addressed him sternly. "My friend, until you can face what you're up against now, you aren't fit to try to go further."

There was a long silence. At last the patient said, "I get it, Jacoby. And—ah—thank you."

Jacoby stood up. "Thank you, for not being angry with me."

"Oh, shut up, will you?" He felt like changing the subject. "By the way, Jacoby, this Erich Kessler—me—am I a Jew like you?"

"No, why? Were you a Jew at home?"

"No, that's why I asked. I thought if I was to be one here you'd better teach me something about the religious rituals. But if I'm not, then it's not important."

Startling to remember now that there had been a time when one could say "It's not important," so carelessly, and then forget about it. There was nobody then to tell him that Erich Kessler's not being a Jew was going to be so important later on that it would enable him to save Jacoby's child.

"Jacoby, I don't know a thing about medicine or surgery, but if there's one thing I do know it's chemistry. Do you think I could learn to do some of these routine analyses that take up so much of your time? Blood-counts, and things like that?"

"Why not?" Jacoby returned eagerly. "If you only knew how much I need a technician! I'll be back in a minute."

He hurried off, and came back with an armful of books which he dumped by the table he had rigged up to match the wheel-chair. "Start with this one. If you have trouble with the vocabulary let me know."

Kessler felt a tingle of returning vigor. This would not be much, but it would be something toward repaying Jacoby. The prospect of making any kind of return was an immeasurable impetus.

He went to work. He worked as hard as Jacoby would let him. Within a couple of weeks he was surprised to find his study interesting for its own sake. "I always thought I was burning up with curiosity about the universe," he said to Jacoby, "but I'm ashamed to find how I neglected my own species. You don't know how glad I am you're letting me do this."

Jacoby shrugged. "Where did you get the impression I was 'letting' you do it? I need you. One of these days, when the country is normal again, maybe I'll be able to get enough technicians. But now—!"

Though at first Kessler undertook only the simplest routines in the laboratory, they absorbed all his energy. He was still far from strong. The work was new, his reports had to be made in a language he still found unwieldy, and learning to make one hand serve the purpose of two required a thousand adjustments. But it meant that he was back in the sphere of active men, doing something that needed to be done, and occupation relieved him of leisure for brooding.

When Germany had entered into a season of quiet that deceived innocent persons like himself and Jacoby into believing that it was recovering from the war, he got in touch with a private investigating agency and found out what had become of Elizabeth. He was told that she was living in California, married and the mother of a son. The news hurt him a great deal more deeply than he had thought it would. Was it conceivable, he asked himself, that he had expected her to spend her life remembering him? Yes, it was conceivable; that was exactly what the primitive, possessive part of himself had wanted her to do, and now this part of himself was leaping up from where he had buried it, enraged that she had accepted her freedom. He tried to bury it again, though it was a long time before he succeeded in doing so. But during that time, pretending to himself that he had done so helped him go on about his business.

Cabrillo Monument

interior is prohibited, its setting against the clear blue skies is truly beautiful and inspiring. From the site of the monument is afforded one of the most outstanding panoramic views to be seen anywhere. Astonishing in its immensity, interesting in its peculiar details—the wide curving coastline rises into mesas in the foreground, to the snow capped peaks of San Bernardino and San Jacinto to the flat top of Table Mountain in Mexico in the background. Most views are limited, but here you can see miles inland to the tops of mountains that overlook the deserts beyond.

To reach the monument, now open to the public from 8:30 a. m. to 4 p. m., daily, turn up Canon street from Rosecrans and proceed out Catalina boulevard to the upper entrance of Fort Rosecrans. (Access by the Rosecrans street entrance to the fort is restricted). At the entrance to the fort you will be stopped by a courteous civilian guard who will explain that you are to obey the speed limit of 25 miles per hour, and that you must remain on the road marked to take you to the monument. You are liable for any encroachment of these rules since the area is patrolled both by the military police of Fort Rosecrans and the police department of San Diego.

You will not be permitted to take your camera on the fort property. Picture taking is not permitted at the monument or on the reservation for security reasons. Your cooperation in obeying the traffic regulations and no camera rule, will make it possible to retain the privilege of visiting the monument and enjoying the view. You will find everyone in an official capacity exceedingly courteous, and anxious to make your visit a pleasant one. If you haven't been out to the monument, go soon. It is our greatest show spot—one that attracts visitors from all over the world! It's a Point Loma "feature" that we can really be proud to have so accessible.

"There's the car," said Elizabeth. "Remember, both of you, not to take any notice of his misfortunes."

Cherry laughed at her reproachfully. "Mother, we're not savages! We don't stare at cripples."

"I know, dear, but sometimes the best of us give a little start when we see persons very different from ourselves. We don't mean to."

Cherry and Dick promised to be models of good behavior. Elizabeth got up and went to the door opening from the living room into the entry. She hoped Mr. Kessler would have a comfortable evening. Entertaining Spratt's business associates was a duty they were all used to, and the older children adapted themselves to it well enough. Brian begged to be let off when there were strangers in to dine, so as usual he had had his dinner early and was now upstairs in his room pottering over his natural history collections. Spratt opened the front door, saying,

"Here we are, Kessler. And here's my wife, Elizabeth, my friend Erich Kessler that you've already heard so much about."

Elizabeth looked up with the smile that Spratt characterized as the masterpiece of the accomplished hostess, "not bright enough to look insincere, but not strained enough to look dutiful. Just in between, gracious."

Mr. Kessler's physical handicaps had threatened to make this occasion difficult, but Elizabeth's initial glance dispelled her apprehension. He was badly crippled, but he did not appear resentful; he faced the world before him with a grave acceptance, as though all the fault he had to find with destiny had been got over long ago. As their eyes met Elizabeth was struck with an impression that she had seen Mr. Kessler somewhere before.

It also seemed to her that Mr. Kessler was looking at her with an unusual interest. His eyes went over her swiftly and inclusively, taking in her hair, her face, her dress, every detail of her as though it were important that he should know all about her as soon as possible. It was the way a man might have looked at a famous personage he had long been eager to meet, or a woman so astoundingly beautiful that he wanted to impress her forever upon his memory. Elizabeth was not famous, and while she was not ugly she was no ravishing beauty either. She thought it might mean that they really had seen each other somewhere, and he like herself was trying to identify the recollection. If her own sense of familiarity persisted she could ask him about it later on.

All this was only a quick flutter in her mind, pushed aside in an instant while her attention turned itself to its immediate concerns. She took in his appearance quickly: a big man of more powerful build than she had expected, bent over a heavy cane with a dependence that told her instantly that she should not expect him to shake hands; iron-gray hair receding at the temples, a thick beard, a scar that rippled up his right cheek, dark eyes with a line of concentration between the

MONEY FOR NEW CHURCH ASSURED BY NATIONAL LUTHERAN ORGANIZATION

At a meeting of the congregation of the St. Peters-by-the-Sea United Lutheran church Sunday evening in the Thursday Club building, Dr. J. P. Beason, president of the United Lutheran Synod for the western states, assured the local church that the National Synod would provide the necessary funds for construction of the new church edifice, which is to be built at the corner of Sunset Cliffs and Adair streets.

The cost of the structure is estimated at $32,000, of which $8000 has been pledged locally. The synod will provide the balance, to be paid back over a 20-year period.

Dr. Beason will leave for the east in a few weeks to complete the arrangements for the loan.

BETHANY CHURCH SCHOOL TO HOLD THEIR MID-YEAR SCHOOL PROGRAM TONIGHT

Discussing the question, "Have you an Evil Eye?" the Rev. Lankow will point out, at both the 8 and the 10:45 a. m. service on Sunday, that "if the world would consult the 'Divine Oculist' and follow his advice an era of fraternal rejoicing would supplant our age of neuroticism and atomistic desolation."

The Bethany Lutheran church school children are having their mid-year school night tonight (Friday) at 7 o'clock under the direction of Mrs. Fenne Lange, Mrs. Marie Wagner and the Rev. Martin Lankow. Parents and friends of the children especially are invited to attend, says the pastor.

COCHRANES RETURN FROM LONG TRIP THROUGH U. S.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Cochrane returned to Ocean Beach Tuesday from an extended house trailer tour of the middle western and southeastern states. "About 15,000 miles is what we traveled," reports Mr. Cochrane. They came back again convinced that our section of California is the place to live. Expressing the point, Mr. Cochrane said "I wouldn't give a dime for all of Imperial Valley and I wouldn't trade that valley for all of Florida," which sounds like he doesn't think much of Florida. They made the trip from Indiana to Florida early in the fall and had spent most of the time since in the latter state. "On the return trip we left Florida in the rain," he said, "and were in rain night and day all the way through Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Eastern Texas." The Cochranes aim to spend the remainder of the winter in Palm Springs, living in their house trailer.

Mr. and Mrs. John Whiteside of 4474 Cape May Ave. are parents of a 7-pound, 13-ounce boy born Wednesday, Jan. 22, at the Navy family hospital in Coronado.

PAPER DRIVE, TO BEGIN MARCH 17, WILL BENEFIT ORTHOPEDIC HOSPITAL

Current beneficiary for the proceeds from old paper, magazines and paper cartons which are to be picked up by the Victory Salvage committee on Monday, March 17, and each Monday for 9 weeks, thereafter, is the Orthopedic Hospital building fund.

Virgil Wyatt, co-chairman of the Victory Salvage committee reports that the committee is sponsoring a $6000 bed in the proposed $300,000 Orthopedic Hospital for Crippled Children. Point Loma residents are urged to save their old papers, magazines and any other paper or cartons that can be neatly stacked and tied, and leave them on the sidewalk in front of their homes. The Victory Salvage truck will pick them up on Monday, March 17.

Mr. Wyatt urges householders to be alert and see that the paper is picked up by only the Victory Salvage truck, which will be plainly marked. Several unauthorized groups have been picking up the paper and using the proceeds for their own benefit. This hinders the drive to aid the crippled children in obtaining their hospital.

Let's get behind this worthy drive, and see how high we can have that paper stacked on our sidewalks Monday, March 17.

Kiwanians Hear Of City's Program On Traffic Safety

Ocean Beach Kiwanians were given many interesting details of the city's program on traffic safety, and on plans for the future, at the Tuesday evening meeting, held at Wallace hall. The speaker was Joe Biddle of the City's Police Traffic Safety department. Arnold Morss, program chairman, introduced Biddle.

He emphasized the reduction in traffic fatalities as shown by comparison of the 101 killed in San Diego in 1945 with the 54 in 1946. At the police estimated cost to the taxpayers and car insurance policyholders of $45,000 for each fatality, that would represent a saving of about $2,225,000 in 1946 over the previous year, based on Biddle's figures.

48,000 Citations in 1946
In 1946, he said the San Diego police issued 48,000 citations for hazardous traffic violations, giving evidence that the city really means business in its efforts to cut down the total of traffic accidents. "Our ultimate goal is zero in fatalities," the speaker stated.

Showing one important phase on the part that the city plays in traffic safety, Biddle enlarged on the junior traffic patrol at the various schools of San Diego, a new program starting about 10 years ago. In that period, he said, there has not been one fatality at these school intersections where this patrol has been in effect.

He emphasized that the city's safety program is a flexible one subject to readjustments to meet new conditions, the improvements being made being the result of experience and the studied judgment of traffic safety engineers.

Being somewhat of an outgrowth of the junior safety patrol of the elementary and junior high schools, the city has during the past year added an important phase of prevention of traffic accidents in the local high schools. Known as the high school student safety council, this new program, has interested and reached the group of youngsters between 14 and 18. Conducted, in large measure, he said, by the students themselves the campaign is providing education in safe car driving.

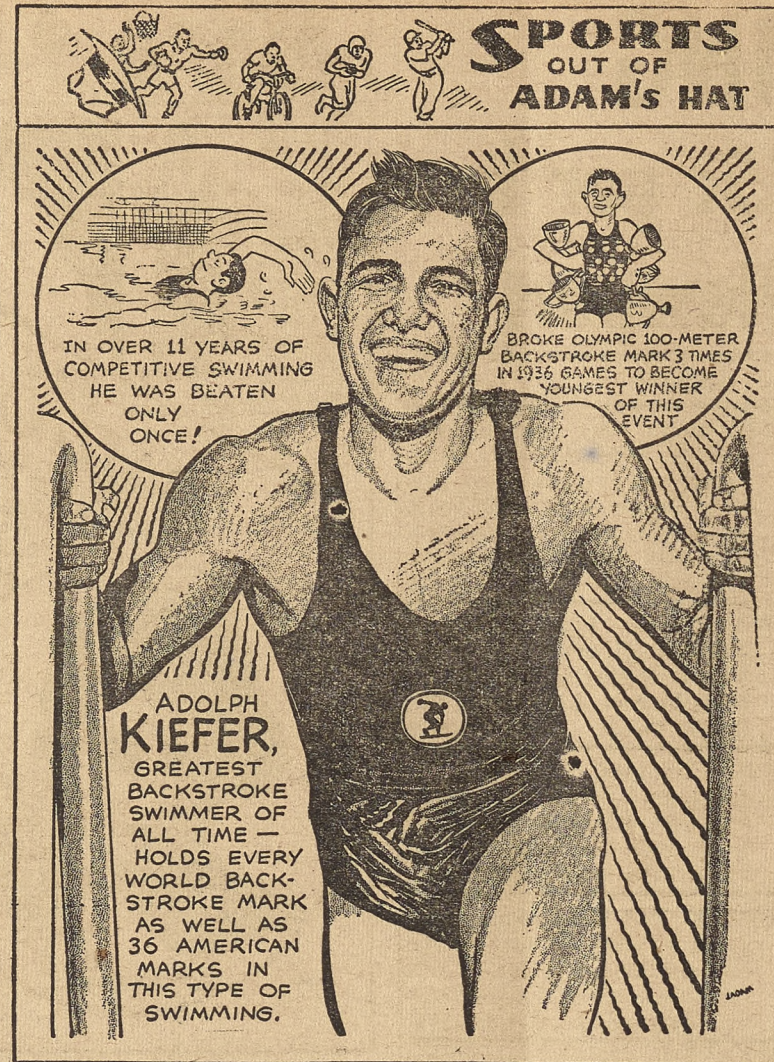

Another group now receiving traffic safety instruction, he said, is the so-called professional drivers, the men behind the wheel of all the trucks in the city.

The speaker declared that most traffic accidents are caused by too much speed and lack of the three "Cs," courtesy, caution and common sense. Car drivers need to be taught to recognize the limits of their own ability as drivers as well as the limits of their cars, and to be taught acquisition of the correct attitude toward their driving. "Instead of seeing only the two tons of steel in the other car approaching yours from a right angle at a street intersection, we must also see the man behind the wheel of the other car and have some regard for him and not try to beat him across and miss a crash by a split second," he said.

The club had several visitors at Tuesday's meeting. Harry Masters Sr. of Newcastle, Pa., was a guest of his son, Harry Masters Jr. Milt Lancaster introduced his brother, Verne Lancaster of Detroit, as a guest. Col. R. W. Shaw introduced his grandson, Henry Hight, as a guest; and J. R. Lowmes his horse trainer at the Lowmes ranch near Santee, Bill Easton.

At the business session, Massey Horton, the new owner of the Kraft drug store, was inducted into membership by Jerry Sullivan, a past president.

Glenn Jones, program committee sub-chairman for the first quarter of 1947, announced that next week's program will be a Boy Scout event, with Dr. M. E. Harrington in charge.

"Ladies Night"

Features Lions
Meeting, Jan. 23

"Ladies Night" at the Ocean Beach Lions club was observed Thursday, Jan. 23, with a dinner meeting at the Woman's club house. Speaker of the evening was William Brotherton who explained the mysteries of jet propulsion to the Lions and their ladies. Brotherton predicted a bright future for jet engines in aircraft of the future and detailed the principles of jet operation.

Prior to the main speaker, Dr. S. Kuntz, local optometrist, made a strong plea for support of the Eye Bank for Sight Restoration, Inc. He told of the work of the institution and what individuals could do to further this important work.

Special guests at the session were Mr. and Mrs. Perry Metcalf of San Diego. Metcalf is past president of the San Diego Lions club. Ted Bates was in charge of the program for the evening.

At the ferry landing I asked the fellow to weigh me and my bike. He estimated us at 200 pounds but said it wasn't very close because the scale was made for tons. He told me of another scale on Market St. It weighed by fives which was more accurate. The bike alone was 65 pounds. My 140 pounds added made a total of 205 pounds for me to carry. Both fellows who

In councilmanic races, only the electors in the various districts will vote on their respective district candidates at the primaries. At the general election April 15, the entire city will vote on the district nominees. The two candidates receiving the highest vote in each district are the district nominees. There is no election at the primary in councilmanic races, even when there is only one candidate. There also is no provision for write-in candidates.

This will mean that Wincote, running alone in the second council district, also will appear on the April 15 ballot running alone.

78TH DISTRICT TOPS FOR NUMBER OF VOTERS

The 78th assembly district, of which Ocean Beach is a part, has a corner on the voters in San Diego county, according to Lex Lord, deputy registrar of voters, who asked recently that the three districts in the county be equalized.

Lord revealed that, prior to the recent purge of voters from the register for failing to vote in either election in 1946, the 78th district comprised 87,432 registered voters, while the 80th boasted 67,082 and the 79th 63,701.

weighed me had read of me in the paper and were interested. The people at the police station were nice also but business-like, not asking questions as others do. It only took a few minutes for the lady filled out the cards. My license number is 680.

I stopped at Gilmore's to get a check-up and find out what was causing the bird. The repairman said to forget the squeak. It was only because the spring was dry and would probably stop. Later, it did. The fellow who coached me in the Del Mar race, acted very disgusted. After riding, and liking, a lightweight bike, here I was started on a cross-country trip on a heavy one. He wanted no more to do with me. I laughed saying I'd be back in time for him to put me in the summer race. All of the folks at the shop wished me luck when I pushed my over-loaded, one-horse chariot out into the street, climbed aboard and pumped laboriously off. The elation I experienced then was worth all the anxiety of getting ready. I felt prepared for anything and as free as a humanly possible! My mind was afire, envisioning unlimited quantities of excitement and adventure ahead. The whole world lay in front of me, waiting to unfold its mysteries. I knew there would be misery and hardship along with the beauty and perfection, but was overly eager to meet the challenge and make the best of it.

With the wind at my back I sailed out El Cajon Blvd., no-handed practically all of the way. Seeing Imig Manor's white column and bricks reminded me of rumors I'd heard about its lobby. I stopped and went in to see for myself. A few people standing about talking, turned to watch me. I wondered if they knew I was guessing at the thoughts behind their various expressions, while I made a slow circle of the lobby, holding my hands behind my back. Was it my plaid shirt, red cap, or dungarees that held their eyes. I've a good idea it was all of me, huh. The smooth modern design inside impressed me as much as the outside of the hotel did. Table lamps and lounging chairs were divided nicely from the dance patio by a floor-to-ceiling window-wall. The patio was edged by an inviting aqua-blue swimming pool. Thinking how I'd like to spend a week-end there, I smiled at the doorman who blessed me with an amused grin as he held open the door.

Still on El Cajon Blvd., after the man to turn over my bike and read the stamped number, while I'd passed Hoover high school, two boys whizzed by me, one on a motorbike, the other on a motor-scooter. Farther, on I found them waiting on a side street. They darted out and rode beside me. The one on the motor-scooter did all the talking. He said he'd read about me. I liked answering his queries except for hollering over the noise of the engines. Satisfied, they wished me a lot of fun and turned back. I think I saw just a little bit of envy in their faces.

Again, at a service station just outside of the town of El Cajon, I met some boys who knew of me. These were from Grossmont high. While I was explaining to them about my trips, another customer of the station, and the attendant, joined them. The customer wanted to know if I carried a gun. I told him I had no use for one but did have a cross. He shook his head. There were plenty of hands to help fill my canteen, and plenty of good wishes when I left the station. I couldn't help chuckling to myself. My story always seemed amazing to the others, whereas, to me it seemed perfectly normal.

The shadows were growing long now so I watched for a sleeping spot. An orange grove who's curving rows have always appealed to me, was where I decided to spread out. Proving its worth, the army poncho concealed my "chariot" between the rows and protected it from dampness during the night. Just as I finished trying to sketch on paper the perfect curves arching from where I sat over the hillside, day ended and night began. It only took me a moment to snuggle into my sleeping roll.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold J. Morss of Ocean Beach were called to Fresno, Calif., Friday by the death of the day previous of the latter's father, Fred Jeffries. The funeral and burial were at Fresno Monday and Mr. Morss returned here Tuesday to his work in the local Bank of America. Mrs. Morss is remaining with the Jeffries family at Fresno for several days more. Mr. Jeffries is survived by his widow, four daughters and one son.
